Strategic Advances in India's Statistical Operations

INTERVIEW

India celebrates National Statistics Day on June 29 every year to commemorate the birth anniversary of the illustrious Prof. P.C. Mahalanobis, whose pioneering contributions have profoundly shaped modern statistical practices in India. His visionary approach not only revolutionised the field of statistics but also laid the groundwork for data-driven decision-making that continues to drive the nation's progress. The theme for National Statistics Day, 2024 is, 'Use of data for decision-making'. The concept of data driven decision making is important for making informed decision in any field and it is one of the most essential skills required for better understanding of statistical information emanating from official statistics and for facilitating evidence-based decision making.

As we honour Prof. Mahalanobis's enduring legacy, we also celebrate the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI), the vanguard of statistical governance in India. MoSPI stands as a beacon of excellence, steadfast in its commitment to harnessing innovative methodologies and advanced technologies to fortify the country's statistical infrastructure.

Dr. Saurabh Garg, Secretary, MoSPI, Government of India, in an exclusive interview with Shri Ambrish Kishore, Sr. Editor, Employment News, elaborates how MoSPI's proactive measures are not only enhancing the accuracy and reliability of statistical data but also empowering policymakers and stakeholders with crucial insights for informed decision-making. Excerpts from his interview:

Q: How does MoSPI incorporate modern technology and innovative practices to improve the efficiency and quality of statistical operations?

A: The Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation is really pushing the envelope with cutting-edge technology to make sure our statistical operations are top-notch. For instance, we've adopted the Computer Assisted Personal Interview (CAPI) method, where our surveyors use android tablets. These tablets are not just for data collection; they're linked to our electronic-Survey Information Gathering and Monitoring Application (e-SIGMA) platform, a dedicated system for National Sample Survey Office (NSSO) surveys. This setup includes different modules for everyone involved- enumerators, supervisors, data supervisors- to ensure data quality right from collection through to scrutiny. It speeds up the process of consolidating survey data, getting results out faster than ever.

We've also developed our own software for compiling crucial stats like Consumer Price Index (CPI), Index of Industrial Production (IIP), and Gross Domestic Product (GDP). These tools aren't off-the-shelf; they're tailor-made by our own officers. And to beef up our data, we're tapping into existing databases like digital financial returns, Public Financial Management System (PFMS), and Goods and Services Tax (GST). This helps us churn out robust National Accounts Estimates that decision-makers can rely on.

And let's not forget our Data Portal, e-Sankhyiki. It's a game-changer, offering a treasure trove of stats on everything from National Account Statistics to the Consumer Price Index. You can dig into more than 1.7 million records spanning the past decade. We've upgraded our website with handy tools like the National Industrial Classification (NIC) code finder and a map view to locate NSSO field offices. It's all about making data accessible and user-friendly for everyone who needs it.

How to Become a Sports Journalist A Play-by-Play Guide

Advitya Bahi

Imagine standing at the edge of the pitch, microphone in hand, as the stadium lights illuminate the night. The electric atmosphere, the palpable tension, and the raw emotion of the players create a symphony of anticipation. You're not merely observing; you're the lens through which the world experiences these moments. This is the heart of sports journalism- a profession that melds the excitement of sports with the art of storytelling.

In this article, we'll delve into the thrilling journey of becoming a sports journalist. It's a path that requires not only a deep passion for sports but also a keen eye for detail and an ability to capture the essence of action in simple words. From the elegant cover drive through the off-side to the precise moment a swimmer touches the wall, sports journalists freeze these fleeting instances, creating stories that evoke powerful emotions.

The Realm of Sports Journalism

Sports journalism is like waltzing into a bustling stadium where every match spins its own mesmerising tale. It's not just about crunching numbers and statistics; it's about feeling the heartbeat of the game and deciphering its impact on society. Sports journalists plunge into the human theater of athletics, capturing the soaring triumphs and gut-wrenching defeats of athletes while unraveling how sports resonate across diverse cultures.

As a sports journalist, versatility is your secret weapon. Whether you're crafting captivating narratives, delivering live play-by-plays, snagging post-match interviews, or uncovering off-the-field stories that shed light on the bigger picture of sports, you're constantly in motion. It's a whirlwind role that calls for sharp wit and swift moves as you navigate the ever-changing currents of the sports media landscape.

Do You Need to Be an Athlete Yourself to Become a Sports Journalist?

This is a question that often bounces around the field like a well-struck soccer ball: Do you need to be an athlete yourself to excel in sports journalism?

First things first, let's debunk the myth that you must have a killer jump shot or be able to run a marathon to be a stellar sports journalist. While having hands-on experience in sports can undoubtedly offer insights, it's not the only path to success. Think of yourself as the ultimate spectator-keen-eyed, observant, and armed with a pen (or keyboard) as your sword.

India's First Superconducting Magnet System Making MRI More Accessible Than Ever

Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI) is a critical diagnostic tool that employs powerful magnetic fields and radio waves to generate detailed images of the human body's internal structures. It is indispensable for examining various parts of the body, including the brain, spinal cord, bones, joints, heart, blood vessels, and internal organs. Despite their crucial role in diagnostics, the exorbitant costs of MRI machines and tests have significantly limited access to advanced healthcare in India. This financial barrier has prevented many from benefiting from essential MRI scans, which are vital for accurate and timely medical diagnosis.

In a groundbreaking development that could change this scenario, scientists at the Inter-University Accelerator Centre (IUAC), New Delhi, have successfully developed India's first superconducting magnet imports has significantly driven up the cost of MRI machines and the associated diagnostic tests, thereby limiting access to advanced healthcare services. Presently, India has a mere 1.5 MRI machines per million people, a stark contrast to the more than 10 MRI machines per million found in developed nations. The imperative to increase the availability of MRI system for MRI machines. This pioneering feat, which showcases India's growing prowess in high-tech innovation, promises to revolutionise the healthcare landscape. By creating this sophisticated technology domestically, the IUAC aims to reduce the cost of MRI machines, making advanced diagnostic services more accessible to the Indian population. Moreover, this development could enable India to export affordable MRI machines, thereby providing much-needed healthcare solutions to other countries, especially those in the developing world.

Up until now, India has been reliant on importing all of its superconducting MRI magnets from abroad, incurring an annual expense of nearly INR 1800 crores. This dependence on machines is crucial for enhancing healthcare accessibility across the country.

Crucial Collaborations

Development of 1.5 Tesla Superconducting MRI Magnet System

Funded by the Ministry of Electronics & Information Technology (MeitY) under the MRI project, the development of the 1.5 Tesla superconducting MRI magnet system involved collaboration with several institutions: SAMEER-Mumbai for RF coils and electronics, CDAC-Kolkata and CDAC-Trivandrum for imaging software, and DSI-Bangalore for MR physics. The IUAC was specifically tasked with building the superconducting magnet and its zero-boil-off liquid Helium (LHe) cryostat.

The indigenous MRI magnet system comprises eight super-

INTERVIEW

Prof. Avinash Chandra Pandey
Director, Inter-University Accelerator Centre

Q: Could you elaborate on the key challenges your team faced during the MRI project and how you overcame them?

A: One of the major challenges we faced was achieving technological mastery, as developing an MRI magnet requires deep expertise and precision engineering. This was initially a significant hurdle. Additionally, traditional MRI machines depend heavily on liquid Helium for cooling, and since India does not have abundant Helium reserves, this posed a substantial obstacle. Cost constraints were another primary concern, as we needed to ensure the technology was cost-effective to produce and maintain. Finally, integrating artificial intelligence to enhance MRI imaging posed both technical and computational challenges.

To overcome these challenges, we brought together a multidisciplinary team of engineers, physicists, and medical professionals to address the technological complexities. We focused on developing Helium-free MRI machines by exploring alternative cooling methods and advanced materials to achieve the required superconductivity. By utilising domestically sourced materials and components, we were able to keep production costs down and streamlined the manufacturing process to ensure efficiency. To tackle AI integration, we partnered with IT experts and leveraged existing AI frameworks to develop sophisticated algorithms capable of enhancing MRI imaging, especially in low-field environments.

Q: How do you envision the impact of locally manufactured MRI machines on the healthcare landscape in India, particularly in terms of accessibility and affordability for the broader population?

A: The impact of locally manufactured MRI machines on the healthcare landscape in India will be significant. In terms of accessibility, domestic production will allow us to significantly increase the number of MRI machines available across the country, particularly in underserved rural and remote areas. Localised manufacturing means quicker and more responsive maintenance and support, reducing downtime and ensuring machines are operational more frequently.

Affordability will also improve as eliminating the need for imported MRI machines and parts reduces costs dramatically, making MRI scans more affordable for a broader segment of the population. Sustainable maintenance will further reduce overall expenditure on MRI machines by avoiding costly annual maintenance contracts with foreign companies, benefiting healthcare providers and patients alike.

Q: You mentioned potential future developments, such as lighter and cost-effective whole-body scanners with AI integration. Could you share more information about these innovations and how they could transform rural healthcare in India?

A: In future, scanners will be designed to be smaller and lighter, making them easier to transport and install in rural clinics and hospitals. Developing MRI machines that do not require Helium will make them more economical and easier to maintain in remote areas. AI integration will play a pivotal role in enhancing image quality and diagnostic accuracy, even with smaller magnets and lower field strengths.

These innovations will significantly transform rural healthcare. Enhanced diagnostic capability, facilitated by advanced AI integration, will ensure that even smaller and less powerful MRI machines provide high-quality images for accurate diagnoses. Combined with telemedicine infrastructure, these scanners will enable remote consultations with specialists, ensuring timely diagnosis and treatment. This will reduce the need for patients to travel to urban centres for medical care, saving time and money. Early and accurate diagnosis facilitated by these innovations will lead to better health outcomes and improved quality of life for rural populations.

conducting coils-six primary and two active shield coils-made from Cu/NbTi conductors, which function at an incredibly low temperature of 4.2K (about -269°C). The system includes advanced features such as an efficient quench protection system, an external interference screening system, and the ability to maintain a magnetic field stability of 0.1 ppm/hr in persistent mode.

One of the standout achievements is the development of the zero-boil-off (ZBO) cryostat. This state-of-the-art cryostat ensures that the magnet remains cooled at 4.2K using a GM cryocooler and a heat exchanger-based recondensation technique, maintaining optimal operating conditions without the loss of liquid Helium.

The IUAC team's success in this area marks India's entry into a select group of nations capable of producing such advanced technology. The ability to produce MRI machines domestically not only reduces dependency on imports but also positions India as a potential exporter of these critical medical devices. This can significantly enhance healthcare access in developing countries, where the cost and availability of advanced medical diagnostics remain a significant challenge.

How to Become a Sports Journalist ...

What truly makes a sports journalist shine is their ability to weave narratives that go beyond the scorecard. It's about unravelling the stories behind the game—the struggles, triumphs, and human dramas that unfold on and off the field. Whether it's a heart-stopping last-minute goal or a player's journey of resilience, your job is to bring these moments to life. While a sports background can offer insights, empathy is your secret weapon. Understanding the emotions that drive athletes, coaches, and fans alike is what sets great sports journalism apart. Whether it's the agony of defeat or the euphoria of victory, your ability to empathise allows you to craft stories that resonate deeply.

So, how do you prepare for this exhilarating journey? It's all about honing your skills in storytelling, mastering the nuances of sports dynamics, and staying on top of the latest trends in the sports world.

The Playbook: Your Guide to Success

Becoming a sports journalist is akin to training for the Olympics—you need preparation, strategy, and determination. In the following sections, we'll outline the playbook for your success, detailing the education, skills, and experiences that will prepare you for a career in sports journalism. We'll discuss how to build a strong foundation, connect with the industry, and ultimately, how to stand out in a competitive field, and by the end of this article, you'll have a clearer vision of how to turn your passion for sports into a thriving career in journalism.

Step 1: Understand the Field

Sports journalism is more than just reporting scores. It encompasses a range of activities, from live commentary and interviewing athletes to investigative reporting on sports management. Familiarise yourself with the various roles and find your niche.

Step 2: Get Educated

While a specific degree in sports journalism isn't always necessary, a bachelor's degree in journalism, communications, or Languages is highly beneficial. Courses in sports history, media ethics, and journalism law will provide a solid foundation.

Step 3: Develop Your Skills

A successful sports journalist is a jack-of-all-trades. Sharpen your writing, editing, and interviewing skills. In today's digital age, proficiency in multimedia tools, social media, and even basic photography and videography can set you apart.

Step 4: Build a Portfolio

Start a blog, contribute to school/college journals, or intern at local sports networks. Your goal is to build a portfolio of work that showcases your ability to cover sports stories effectively.

Step 5: Network

The sports industry thrives on connections. Attend sports events, join professional associations, and connect with established journalists. Networking can lead to mentorship opportunities and job openings.

Step 6: Stay Informed and Specialise

Be a lifelong learner of the sports world. Specialise in a particular sport or aspect of sports journalism that you're passionate about. This can make you a go-to expert in the field.

Step 7: Gain Experience

Start small, local newspapers, blogs, or radio stations, and work your way up. Each piece of experience is a stepping stone towards larger, more prestigious outlets.

Step 8: Be Ethical and Impartial

Maintain high ethical standards. Your credibility as a journalist depends on your impartiality and ability to report the facts without bias.

Step 9: Adapt and Innovate

The field of journalism is constantly evolving. Be adaptable and open to new technologies and storytelling methods. Innovate to stay relevant and engaging.

Step 10: Keep the Passion Alive

Sports journalism can be demanding with tight deadlines and travel. Keep your passion for sports and storytelling alive, as it will reflect in your work and resonate with your audience.

Why Mastering Mass Communication Turns You Into a Stellar Sports Journalist?

Ever wondered what it takes to be a sports journalist who's not just good, but great? Think of it like this: being a sports journalist is a bit like being an athlete. Just as athletes need to master different skills, so do sports journalists. And here's the secret sauce: studying mass communication is your ultimate training regimen. Here's why.

- The Art of Story-Telling: Mass communication teaches you the craft of storytelling. It's not just about knowing that the underdog team won—it's about narrating how they clawed their way to victory, sweat and all. You learn to paint pictures with words, making every game a vivid tapestry of emotions and drama.
- The Science of Persuasion: Ever tried convincing a die-hard fan that their favourite player had an off day? Mass communication dives deep into the science of persuasion. You'll master the art of constructing arguments, presenting evidence, and winning over even the most skeptical readers.
- The Pulse of Public Opinion: Mass communication courses are like a stethoscope to the heart of public opinion. You'll learn to gauge what fans are buzzing about, what's trending, and why it matters. This insight helps you write pieces that resonate, spark conversations, and sometimes even ignite debates.
- The Dance with Digital Media: In the digital age, a sports journalist needs to be a bit of a social media whiz. Mass communication covers the nuances of digital platforms, teaching you how to engage audiences with tweets, Instagram stories, and short videos. You become a multimedia maestro, conducting an orchestra of digital content.
- The Ethics Playbook: In sports journalism, integrity is everything. Mass communication drills into you the importance of ethics. You'll learn to navigate tricky waters, ensuring your reporting is fair, accurate, and respectful. Remember, nobody likes a biased commentator, right?

- The Interviewing Game: Great sports journalism often hinges on great interviews. Mass communication equips you with interviewing skills, teaching you how to ask the right questions, listen actively, and extract the juiciest quotes. It's like having a cheat code for unlocking the most candid player insights.

- The Cultural Commentary: Finally, mass communication helps you see the bigger picture. Sports aren't just games; they're a reflection of society. By understanding cultural and societal dynamics, you can write pieces that not only cover the score but also explore the impact of sports on communities and cultures.

So, if you're aiming to become a top-tier sports journalist, studying mass communication will give you an all-access pass to a career where you're not just covering games—you're telling stories that resonate, inspire, and sometimes even change the way we see the world. Plus, you'll have a blast along the way, because let's face it, who wouldn't want to be in the thick of the action, blending the thrill of sports with the magic of storytelling?

Here's a list of the top 20 mass communication institutes in India based on the National Institutional Ranking Framework (NIRF) ranking 2024:

Institute Name	Location
1. Indian Institute of Mass Communication (IIMC)	New Delhi
2. Asian College of Journalism (ACJ)	Chennai
3. Symbiosis Institute of Media and Communication (SIMC)	Pune
4. Xavier Institute of Communications (XIC)	Mumbai
5. AJK Mass Communication Research Centre	New Delhi
6. Manipal Academy of Higher Education (MAHE)	Manipal
7. Christ University	Bengaluru
8. Savitribai Phule Pune University (SPPU)	Pune
9. Indian Institute of Journalism and New Media (IIJNM)	Bengaluru
10. Lady Shri Ram College for Women (LSR)	New Delhi
11. Amity School of Communication (ASCO)	Noida
12. Sophia College for Women	Mumbai
13. Kishinchand Chellaram College (KC College)	Mumbai
14. Manorama School of Communication (MASCOM)	Kottayam
15. Apeejay Institute of Mass Communication (AIMC)	New Delhi

Alternative Career Paths for Sports Journalists

Imagine you've spent years on the exhilarating frontlines of sports journalism, capturing the highs and lows of athletic prowess with every keystroke. Now, as you glance ahead, you realise the playing field extends far beyond the sidelines. Whether your heart yearns for a new challenge or a different angle to the game, the world beckons with a plethora of opportunities beyond sports journalism. From crafting compelling narratives in content creation to strategising in sports marketing, your skills as a sports journalist open doors to a diverse array of career paths. So, let's explore how your journey from sports journalism can seamlessly transition into a realm of endless possibilities and new adventures.

Sports Content Creation: Ever wondered who crafts those engaging articles, podcasts, and videos that light up your sports feed? That's right—it's the sports content creators! As a seasoned sports journalist, you can master the art of capturing the drama and magic of sports. Now, unleash your creativity to produce compelling content that keeps fans glued to their screens. From viral social media posts to in-depth documentaries, the digital arena is your playground.

Sports PR: Picture this: you're not just reporting on the action; you're shaping the narrative from behind the scenes. As a sports Public Relations (PR) maestro, you'll be the mastermind orchestrating press releases, managing media relations, and crafting compelling stories that enhance a team's or athlete's image. Your backstage pass to the sports world opens doors to strategic communications, crisis management, and building lasting brand reputations.

Sports Marketing: Ready to put your sports savvy to work in the business arena? Enter the realm of sports marketing, where you'll blend your journalistic insights with strategic prowess to create winning campaigns. Whether it's promoting major sporting events, endorsing athletes, or launching sponsorships, your ability to understand the pulse of sports fans will be your secret weapon. Get ready to hit marketing home runs and score big for brands.

Sports Data Analyst: Numbers, statistics, and analytics. If you have a knack for crunching numbers and deciphering trends, a career as a sports data analyst might just be your slam dunk. Dive into the data pool to uncover insights that shape team

Nalanda University: From Ruins to Revival of an Ancient Seat of Learning

EN EXPLAINS

Knowledge has always held the highest place in India's rich heritage. From childhood, we have been taught how it is an invaluable treasure. On June 19, 2024, when Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi inaugurated the new campus of Nalanda University, once again honouring the radiant Source of Knowledge. On this occasion, PM Shri Modi said, "Nalanda is the declaration of this truth that even though books may burn in the flames, the flames cannot extinguish knowledge". Historically, Nalanda was a bustling intellectual hub, attracting scholars from across Asia for over eight centuries. Nalanda wasn't just a place of education; it was a melting pot of ideas, fostering discourse in subjects ranging from philosophy to astronomy. Tragically, this intellectual beacon was destroyed centuries ago. However, the story of Nalanda doesn't end there. From its majestic ruins rose a powerful dream: to revive this ancient seat of knowledge and reignite its flame for the modern world. This is the remarkable journey of Nalanda University, a testament to the enduring power of learning and the quest to reclaim a lost legacy.

Tracing the Ancient Glory to Modern Revival

- The Gupta dynasty, known for its patronage of the arts and sciences, established Nalanda University in 427 AD under the reign of Emperor Kumaragupta I.
- The term 'Nalanda' originates from the Sanskrit words 'Nalam' which translates to lotus, a symbol of knowledge, while 'Da' means to give. Thus, 'Nalanda' signifies 'the giver of knowledge' or 'the one who bestows lotus (knowledge)'. Following the establishment of the Mahavihara within its grounds, the name evolved to 'Nalanda Mahavihara'. Over time, Nalanda University became a renowned centre of learning, attracting students from various regions including Java, China, Tibet, Sri Lanka, and Korea.
- During the visit of the Chinese traveller Xuanzang to India, Nalanda University was home to approximately 8,500 students and 1,510 teachers. Some of the distinguished teachers at the time included Shilabhadra, Dharmapala, Chandrapala, Gunamati, Sthiramati, Prabhamitra, Jinamitra, Gyanchandra, Nagarjuna, Vasubandhu, Asanga, and Dharmakirti.
- Reflecting its academic significance, Nalanda's campus was an architectural marvel, comprising eight separate compounds, ten temples, numerous meditation halls, and 300 rooms, along with schools and hostels scattered throughout the complex. The serene lakes and gardens surrounding the structures provided a tranquil setting that was ideal for contemplation and scholarly pursuits. Upon excavation, the site revealed its immense scale and architectural splendour, boasting enormous, magnificent buildings. Additionally, excavators unearthed artefacts such as copper and brass Buddha statues.
- According to historical records, admission to Nalanda University involved a rigorous selection process, ensuring only the most capable students were accepted.
- Regarded as Asia's and the world's premier university from the 7th century onward, Nalanda offered tuition, accommodation, and food to students free of charge, making education accessible to all without financial burden. Foreign travellers' accounts describe Nalanda University as having excellent living arrangements for its students.

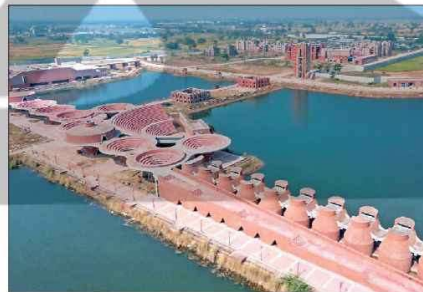

- Under the patronage of the Pala dynasty in the 8th and 9th centuries AD, Nalanda University achieved global renown. Its enduring impact is particularly evident in its substantial contributions to mathematics and astronomy. Notably, Aryabhata, the trailblazer of Indian mathematics and the originator of the concept of zero served as a distinguished teacher at Nalanda during the 6th century AD.

Nalanda University boasted three significant libraries- Ratnodadhi, Ratnasagar, and Ratranjaka-each housed in seven-storey buildings, collectively held over 9 million books. Scholars, researchers, and visitors from afar continuously frequented these libraries. Their extensive collections covered diverse subjects including medicine, Ayurveda, Buddhism, Mathematics, Grammar, Astronomy, and Indian Philosophy.

The Fall of Nalanda: Tragedy and Legacy

Nalanda's illustrious history is marred by a violent end, leaving behind a legacy of loss and prompting reflection on the fragility of such institutions. While the exact cause of Nalanda's decline is a subject of debate, the most significant factor is widely attributed to the invasion by Bakhtiyar Khilji, a Turkish general, around 1200 CE. He embarked on a series of conquests in eastern India. His primary motivation seems to have been plunder, and Nalanda, with its reputation for wealth and scholarship, became a prime target.

The once-flourishing university, a haven for scholars and students, was ransacked. Monks were reportedly massacred, and the famed libraries said to house countless texts on various subjects, were set ablaze. The destruction was so thorough that Nalanda never fully recovered.

While Khilji's invasion was the immediate cause, several factors might have contributed to Nalanda's vulnerability.

- Political Instability: The decline of the Pala Empire, a long-time patron of Nalanda, created political instability in the region. This may have weakened the university's defences and made it an easier target.
- Economic Downturn: Economic decline in the region may have hampered Nalanda's ability to maintain its lavish facilities and attract scholars.

Modern Rebirth: A New Chapter

Despite its tragic end, Nalanda's legacy continues to inspire. The revival of Nalanda University was initiated by former President Dr. APJ Abdul Kalam in 2006. This vision gained traction following the passage of the Nalanda University Bill in 2010, leading to its establishment at a temporary site near Rajgir in 2014. The foundation stone for its permanent campus in Pilkh village, Rajgir, was laid by former President Pranab Mukherjee in 2016. While the new Nalanda cannot erase the losses of the past, it serves as a symbol of hope and a testament to the enduring power of learning. The infrastructural constructions were done in the new campus from 2017 to 2023. The celebrated architect B.V. Doshi designed the eco-friendly architecture reflecting the Vaastu of the ancient Nalanda while integrating all modern amenities that match world standards.

The new campus is spread over 455 acres, with more than 90 per cent of the buildings already constructed. It is a large carbon footprint-free Net-Zero campus, sprawling over acres of greens and 100 acres of water-bodies, truly an abode for learning. Currently, 400 students from 17 countries are studying here. Diplomats from 17 countries studying at Nalanda University also attended the inauguration ceremony. This new campus will not only be a centre of education but also a global knowledge hub fostering dialogue and collaboration between different cultures and ideas. The revival of Nalanda University is a symbol of India's dedication to its knowledge tradition and will inspire generations to come.

A Beacon Rekindled: Nalanda University in the 21st Century

Nalanda University resurrected as a modern iteration of the historic centre of scholarship in Bihar, India, is poised for a promising future.

Academic Excellence

- Nalanda University is likely to continue developing and expanding its inter-disciplinary programmes, promoting a holistic approach to education that combines different fields of study.

- With an emphasis on research, the university is expected to enhance its research facilities, encouraging cutting-edge research in areas such as humanities, sciences, and social sciences.

Infrastructure Development

- The university is expected to expand its infrastructure with state-of-the-art facilities, including advanced laboratories, libraries, and lecture halls to support academic activities.

- The university's commitment to a Net Zero campus positions it as a leader in sustainable practices. We might see Nalanda develop innovative solutions for renewable energy, waste management, and eco-friendly infrastructure, inspiring other institutions.

Global Collaboration

With its focus on Asian scholarship and its network of partner countries, Nalanda University has the potential to become a premier centre for international research and education exchange. The university will likely strengthen its collaborations with other prestigious institutions worldwide, facilitating student and faculty exchange programmes, joint research projects, and international conferences enriching the cultural and academic environment of the university.

Technological Integration

- Integration of digital technologies in the curriculum will be a priority, with more online courses, digital resources, and virtual classrooms to enhance the learning experience.

- Adoption of innovative teaching methodologies, such as blended learning and flipped classrooms, will be emphasised to improve student engagement and learning outcomes.

Cultural and Heritage Studies

- Given its historical significance, the university is expected to emphasise Asian studies, including the history, culture, philosophy, and languages of the region.

- Programmes and research dedicated to the preservation and study of cultural heritage will be a significant focus, reflecting the legacy of the ancient Nalanda University.

Community Engagement

- Nalanda University will continue to engage with local communities through outreach programmes, contributing to regional development and education.

The story of Nalanda serves as a stark reminder of the vulnerability of academic institutions in times of turmoil. It underscores the importance of safeguarding knowledge through various means, including digital archives and decentralised storage. Furthermore, fostering tolerance and understanding across different cultures and religions can create a more secure environment for scholarship. As Nalanda welcomes students from across the world, its classrooms transform into crucibles of collaboration, where diverse perspectives ignite innovation and solutions for a brighter tomorrow. The torch of knowledge, rekindled at Nalanda, promises to illuminate the path for generations to come. This is not just a university; it's a testament to the enduring human spirit's pursuit of learning and a symbol of hope for a more peaceful and prosperous future.

Strategic Advances in India's Statistical Operations

Q: Could you elaborate on the MoU between MoSPI and ISRO's NRSC for the Urban Frame Survey?

A: MoSPI inked this MoU in February 2024 with ISRO's National Remote Sensing Centre (NRSC) to revolutionise our Urban Frame Survey (UFS), a crucial tool for our large-scale socio-economic surveys in urban areas. This survey acts as a sampling frame.

Now, here's where it gets exciting: We've moved the UFS into the digital realm using ISRO's Bhuvan platform since the Phase 2017-22. This shift allows us to harness the power of high-resolution satellite imagery for more precise mapping and boundary delineation of urban blocks and towns.

And, we're not stopping there. We're rolling out a mobile application that'll let us geo-tag data collected during UFS. Plus, we're launching a web portal to visualise this data and manage it through system-generated scrutiny and editing. To handle the complex task of accessing polygons captured via the mobile app, we've developed a Quantum GIS (QGIS) plug-in.

But it's not just about technology; it's about people too. NRSC will help build the capacity of our NSSO officials, ensuring they're equipped to handle this cutting-edge approach. This collaboration is a major leap forward, transforming our UFS from analogue to digital. It's all about improving the quality and timeliness of our urban frame updates, ultimately giving us better insights into urban dynamics across the country.

Q: How does MoSPI ensure that its data collection and analysis meet contemporary standards?

A: We place a strong emphasis on upholding the highest standards in our statistical operations by adhering to global best practices. A pivotal initiative in this regard involves tailoring the United Nations' Quality Assurance Framework to establish our Internal Quality Assessment Framework. This framework ensures that every phase of our statistical processes maintains rigorous quality standards.

When it comes to estimating significant indicators such as GDP, CPI, and IIP, we prioritise accuracy and reliability. We strictly follow international guidelines prescribed by esteemed organisations like the IMF and the UN, utilising frameworks like the System of National Accounts 2008 and the Consumer Price Index Manual to ensure consistency in our data.

Currently, we are actively engaged in updating the base year for CPI from 2012 to 2024, leveraging insights from the Household Consumption Expenditure Survey conducted between 2022 and 2023. This meticulous updating process ensures that our economic indicators remain relevant and precise.

Beyond numerical accuracy, collaboration is key. We work closely with expert committees comprising representatives from various ministries, the RBI, academia, and other stakeholders. These collaborations help us refine our survey schedules and ensure that each survey addresses pertinent issues with the benefit of expert insights.

To continuously enhance our capabilities, MoSPI operates the National Statistical Systems Training Academy (NSSTA). Under the Training Programme Approval Committee (TPAC), NSSTA develops and conducts comprehensive training programmes. These programmes are strategically designed to empower our statistical personnel with the latest skills and knowledge, keeping them at the forefront of statistical practice.

Q: How does the Ministry publish its reports and analyses?

A: We ensure wide dissemination of our survey results and statistical reports. Key findings are shared through fact sheets and press notes, all readily available on MoSPI's website. Our detailed unit-level data and survey reports from NSSO are also accessible to the public.

MoSPI follows the Special Data Dissemination Standards (SDDS) of the IMF. We release important products like GDP, CPI, and IIP according to an Advance Release Calendar (ARC), ensuring timely availability.

Quarterly GDP estimates and other National Accounts Statistics are released on the last working day of the second month after the reference quarter, a month ahead of the deadline as per SDDS. These updates are published via press notes on PIB and our website.

Annually, the 'National Accounts Statistics' publication provides comprehensive disaggregated estimates. We also publish state-wise Agriculture Commodities Output values on yearly basis.

Consumer Price Indices and inflation figures are released through press releases on the Press Information Bureau (PIB) and our website on the 12th of each month at 5:30 PM, or the next working day if the 12th falls on a holiday.

Similarly, the Index of Industrial Production (IIP) is released via press releases on PIB and our website on the 12th of each month at 5:30 PM, or the previous working day if the 12th is a holiday.

To maintain data quality and accessibility, MoSPI has established the National Metadata Structure (NMDS). This framework guides data producers across ministries to maintain uniform quality standards and facilitate easy data sharing and comparisons.

Q: How does MoSPI enhance its capabilities in research and data analytics to foster evidence-based decision-making?

A: At MoSPI, we've established the Research and Analysis Unit (RAU) within our ministry with a clear focus on enhancing our capacity for research and data analytics. The RAU serves as an institutional mechanism aimed at promoting evidence-based decision-making across various sectors.

Our commitment to accessibility extends to data visualisation on our ministry's website, which allows stakeholders and users to easily and quickly access a wealth of data and information. This visual representation enhances understanding and usability of our statistical outputs.

We believe in active engagement with stakeholders, which is why we organise Data Users' Conferences. These conferences play a crucial role in incorporating feedback and requirements from stakeholders into our processes and products. This inclusive approach ensures that our statistical outputs meet the needs of those who rely on them for evidence-based policy making and public discourse.

We've chosen 'Use of Data for Decision Making' as the theme for Statistics Day 2024, celebrated on June 29, 2024. This underscores our commitment to highlighting the pivotal role of data in shaping informed decisions across various domains.

Q: MoSPI has recently been elected as a member of the UN Statistical Commission. What role will MoSPI play in defining international standards for official statistics?

A: Indeed, it's a matter of pride for us. India has secured a seat on the UN Statistical Commission for the term 2024-2027, marking our return after nearly two decades. During the recent 55th session of the UN Statistical Commission held in New York, India played a pivotal role in the adoption of a significant resolution to increase the Commission's membership from 24 to 54 countries. This expansion aims to enhance inclusivity, particularly benefiting developing countries like ours.

As a member of the UN Statistical Commission, India is committed to collaborating with other National Statistical Offices (NSOs), especially those from the Global South, to strengthen their statistical systems. Drawing on our rich statistical heritage, we aim to contribute significantly to the global statistical system through the sharing of experiences, technical collaborations, and the adoption of innovative technologies.

Looking ahead, we're exploring how India can actively contribute to the agenda of the UN Statistical Commission and other esteemed global institutions in the statistical domain. We're also planning to showcase our ongoing statistical reforms and achievements in future sessions and side events of the Commission to amplify our impact on the international stage.

Q: Is India part of any other regional statistical bodies affiliated with the UN?

A: Yes, India actively participates in several regional statistical bodies under the UN framework. For instance, we were recently re-elected as one of the three Vice Chairs of the Bureau of the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) Committee on Statistics (CST) for the period from 2022 to 2024. ESCAP serves as a crucial platform for promoting cooperation among its 53 Member States and nine Associate Members in addressing sustainable development challenges across the Asia-Pacific region. The ESCAP Committee on Statistics plays a pivotal role as the highest-level inter-governmental forum for decision-making on statistical matters in our region.

Additionally, India has been re-elected to the Governing Council (GC) of the UN Statistical Institute for Asia and the Pacific (SIAP) for the same period. SIAP serves as the training arm of ESCAP, focusing on providing professional statistical training to government officials and others involved in official statistics. Through SIAP, we aim to enhance the capabilities of national government employees in producing, utilising, and disseminating reliable statistics. This training is crucial for monitoring the Sustainable Development Goals and development of evidence based policies.

Q: What career opportunities exist in the government sector for those with a background in Statistics? How are the recruitments carried out, and what are the role and scope of these positions?

A: Direct recruitment to the Junior Time Scale of the Indian Statistical Service (ISS), an organised Group A service of the Government of India, is conducted through an open competitive examination by the Union Public Service Commission. Candidates aged between 21 to 30 years with a Bachelor's degree in Statistics, Mathematical Statistics, or Applied Statistics, or a Master's degree in these fields from a recognised University, can apply. ISS officers handle data and analysis work in various Government Ministries and field offices across India. Detailed information is available on the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) website (www.mospi.gov.in).

Direct recruitment to the Subordinate Statistical Service (SSS), a Group B service of the Government of India, is conducted through an open competitive examination by the Staff Selection Commission. Candidates not exceeding 30 years of age with a Bachelor's or equivalent degree from a recognised University, with Statistics, Operations Research, Mathematics, Economics, or Computer Science as a subject, are eligible to apply. SSS officers manage the collection, tabulation, and scrutiny of data and related analysis work in various Government Ministries, including National Sample Survey (NSS) field offices across India. More information can be found on the MoSPI website (www.mospi.gov.in).

Q: Does the MoSPI provide any opportunities for internships and research?

A: The Ministry of Statistics & Programme Implementation (MoSPI) offers an internship scheme at various Statistical Offices of the Government of India for post-graduate and research students. Eligible fields include Statistics, Mathematical Statistics, Operations Research, Economics, Demography, or any applied field of Statistics from recognised universities or institutions. The internship lasts for 2 months from the date of joining. Interns receive a token stipend of Rs 10,000 (consolidated) at the end of the internship period, equating to Rs 5000 per month. Detailed advertisements regarding this internship are published on the MoSPI website.

Furthermore, the ministry provides grant-in-aid for research studies/project on official statistics under Capacity Development Scheme to the eligible professional/ research institutions / organisations engaged in the field of official statistics. The quantum of financial assistance in the case of studies / surveys would be upto a maximum of Rs 20 lakh. For details, please contact Additional Director General, Training Division, MoSPI.

The Ministry has recently published advertisement for engagement of Professionals/ Consultants on contractual basis for its offices located in Delhi and Kolkata. Candidates with Master's Degree in Management/ Economics/ Computer Science/ Computer Applications with requisite experience are eligible.

International Day of Yoga Celebrated Worldwide on June 21

The 10th International Day of Yoga was celebrated across the globe on June 21. The main function was held at Sher-i-Kashmir International Conference Centre (SKICC) in Srinagar, Jammu and Kashmir. Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi led the celebrations from Srinagar. Globally, Embassies and Indian Missions abroad joined the celebrations, reflecting yoga's widespread influence. On the occasion, the Prime Minister addressed the gathering and participated in the Common Yoga Protocol session, highlighting Yoga's significance in nurturing physical, mental, and spiritual growth. Regarding the expansion of Yoga in the last 10 years, the Prime Minister talked about a new yoga economy and mentioned the growing attraction for yoga tourism and people's desire to visit India to learn authentic yoga. He also mentioned yoga retreats, resorts, dedicated facilities for Yoga at airports and hotels, Yoga apparel and equipment, and personal Yoga trainers. He said all these developments are creating new employment avenues for the youth.

Government to Form Committee to Oversee NTA Issues

Education Minister Shri Dharmendra Pradhan has announced the formation of a high-level committee to address issues concerning the National Testing Agency (NTA). The proposed committee will recommend ways to enhance NTA's structure, operations, exam processes, transparency, and data security protocols. Acknowledging recent irregularities in NTA's operations, the minister assured that the government is investigating the issues closely. He emphasised the government's commitment to Students' welfare, pledging strict action against those responsible for irregularities, particularly in relation to the NEET-UG exam in Bihar. Regarding the cancellation of the UGC Net exam, Shri Pradhan explained the decision was made based on inputs from the Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre. The Minister urged the public to disregard rumours and assured that the interests of students who cleared the NEET-UG exam will be safeguarded.

WCD Ministry Launches 100-Day Campaign for Women Empowerment

Minister of State for Women and Child Development, Mrs. Savitri Thakur, inaugurated a special 100-day outreach campaign for women empowerment in New Delhi on June 21. The campaign aims to educate and empower women through training programmes for Asha and Anganwadi workers at the grassroots level. Divided into phases, the initiative will monitor progress regularly to ensure effective implementation. Mrs. Thakur highlighted the campaign's role in shaping future policies and schemes tailored to women's needs over the next five years. The Minister also announced the formation of dedicated teams in each zone to collaborate with the central government in executing the campaign.

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) and Indra-prastha Institute of Information Technology, (IIIT)-Delhi, have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) aimed at enhancing road safety through Artificial Intelligence (AI) technologies. This collaboration will utilise

AI-based solutions to improve the visibility and condition of road signs across National Highways. Under the agreement, IIIT Delhi will conduct extensive surveys to gather imagery and data concerning the availability and state of road signs along selected stretches spanning approximately 25,000 km of National Highways. The collected data will undergo AI processing by IIIT Delhi to accurately identify, classify, and assess road signs. Moreover, the survey outcomes will produce a comprehensive report featuring geographically stamped inventories of existing road signs, categorisation details, structural conditions, and supplementary data crucial for road safety enhancement initiatives.
