Swatantra Bharat to Samriddha Bharat

Pradhan Mantri Viksit Bharat Rozgar Yojana

EN Team

When India won independence in 1947, the struggle was not only for political freedom but also for the promise of dignity, livelihood, and opportunity. Seventy-eight years later, as Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi stood atop the Red Fort to deliver his 12th Independence Day address, he sought to link that historic journey of freedom with the aspiration of building a Viksit Bharat— a developed India. Central to that vision is productive employment for India's vast and youthful population.

It is in this context that the announcement of the Pradhan Mantri Viksit Bharat Rozgar Yojana (PMVBRY) must be understood. With a financial outlay of nearly ₹1 lakh crore and the ambition to generate over 3.5 crore jobs in two years, the scheme positions itself as both an employment stimulus and a structural reform in India's labour market.

Employment as the Bridge between Freedom and Prosperity

By unveiling a massive employment-linked initiative, the Prime Minister underscored the centrality of jobs in India's development story. Political freedom in 1947 liberated the nation from colonial rule; economic reforms in 1991 freed markets from excessive state controls. Today, the unfinished task is to ensure that this freedom translates into employment-led prosperity.

Without adequate job creation, India's demographic dividend risks turning into a demographic burden. The PMVBRY thus seeks to align freedom with opportunity, and opportunity with prosperity, by directly incentivising both job seekers and job creators.

The scheme rests on two pillars: support to first-time employees and incentives for employers.

1. Part A— Support to First-Time Employees

- Target group: Youth entering the workforce for the first time, registered with EPFO.
- Incentive: One month's EPF wage, up

Gr. Capt. Shubhanshu Shukla

Legacy of India's Human Spaceflight

Dr. Navneet Kumar Gupta

On 18 August 2025, the Lok Sabha held a special discussion to honour Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla, the Indian Air Force pilot who recently returned from the Axiom Space Mission-4 to the International Space Station (ISS). His achievement marks a historic moment, as an Indian has journeyed to space 41 years after Squadron Leader Rakesh Sharma's mission in 1984.

Rakesh Sharma's eight-day stay on the Soviet Union's Salyut-7 was a milestone in India's space history. Now, Shubhanshu Shukla carries forward that legacy, inspiring a new generation of Indians to pursue careers in science, space, and defense.

The mission was made possible by the 2023 agreement between Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi and the then US President Mr Joe Biden, which paved the way for India's participation. After some delays, the mission launched successfully on June 25, 2025, with astronauts from India, Poland, Hungary, and the US.

Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla's name was officially announced on February 27, 2024, when Prime Minister Modi introduced the astronaut team at ISRO's Vikram Sarabhai Space Center in Thiruvananthapuram. His journey adds a proud new chapter to India's space achievements following ISRO's landmark missions like Chandrayaan and Mangalyaan.

Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla, born into a simple family in Uttar Pradesh, has risen to become one of India's most distinguished space pioneers. His early education took place in government schools of Uttar Pradesh, where his sharp intellect, discipline, and deep interest in science and mathematics drew him towards the Indian Air Force. After graduating from the National Defence Academy (NDA), Pune with a B.Tech., he pursued an M.Tech from the Indian Institute of Science (IISc), Bangalore, further strengthening his technical foundation. He went on to complete his flying training at the Indian Air Force Academy, Dundigal, becoming a fighter pilot and eventually rising to the rank of Group Captain, with extensive experience flying frontline aircraft such as the MiG-21 and Sukhoi-30MKI. His skill and technical expertise established him as a standout officer in the Air Force. In 2019, as part of India's preparations for the Gaganyaan mission, Shukla was selected for astronaut training conducted jointly by ISRO and Roscosmos, where he underwent rigorous preparation at the Yuri Gagarin Cosmonaut Training Center in Russia, mastering microgravity adaptation, spacecraft operations, orbital mechanics, life-support systems, medical emergency handling, and the Russian language—training that laid the foundation for his historic journey to space.

Axiom Space Mission-4 Journey

The Axiom Space Mission-4, with Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla serving as payload specialist, marked a historic achievement for India and the global space community. The mission was launched on June 25, 2025, at 2:31 a.m. EDT (12:01 p.m. IST) aboard a SpaceX Crew Dragon spacecraft, and successfully docked with the International Space Station (ISS) on June 26, 2025, at 10:31 a.m. UTC (4:30 p.m. IST). During their 18-day stay in orbit, Shukla and his international crewmates—Commander Peggy Whitson of the United States, Sławosz Uznański-Wiśniewski of Poland, and Tibor Kapu of Hungary—carried out crucial microgravity experiments and technology demonstrations on behalf of ISRO and partner institutions, contributing valuable knowledge for the future of human spaceflight.

The crew undocked from the ISS on July 14, 2025, at 11:15 A.M. UTC, beginning their return journey to Earth. The mission concluded with a safe splashdown off the coast of San Diego, California, on July 15, 2025, at 9:31 A.M. UTC (4:31 A.M. CT / 3:01 P.M. IST). Their successful landing was celebrated worldwide as a symbol of international cooperation and scientific advancement.

For India, the mission held special significance, as Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla became the first member of India's astronaut corps to visit the ISS, 41 years after Rakesh Sharma's to ₹15,000, disbursed in two instalments (after 6 months and 12 months of continuous service).

- Financial literacy: The second instalment is contingent on completing a financial literacy programme, encouraging savings and formal financial behavior.
- Reach: An estimated 1.92 crore new employees stand to benefit.

This design achieves three things simultaneously: incentivising workforce participation, promoting financial inclusion, and extending social security coverage.

2. Part B- Incentives for Employers

- Target group: Employers across sectors, with a stronger push for manufacturing.
- Incentive: Up to ₹3,000 per month per additional employee (with salaries up to ₹1 lakh), for two years.

- Manufacturing edge: Extended support up to four years, recognising manufacturing as the linchpin of sustainable job creation.
- Scale: Expected to generate 2.6 crore additional jobs.

This arm of the scheme is intended to reduce hiring costs, encourage formal employment, and nudge employers toward long-term workforce expansion.

Policy Significance

- Scale: With ₹1 lakh crore earmarked, the scheme is among the largest direct job-linked interventions in India's history.
- Formalisation of Workforce: By anchoring the scheme within the EPFO framework, the government is pushing workers into the formal sector, thereby broadening the net of social security. This addresses one of India's chronic challenges: informality, which currently engulfs nearly 80–85% of the labor force.

3. Manufacturing Push: The differentiated support for manufacturing signals an intent to align employment policy with industrial policy. If implemented well, this could dovetail with “Make in India” and “Atmanirbhar Bharat” efforts, positioning India as a global manufacturing hub.

4. Behavioral Nudges: The requirement of continuous service, combined with financial literacy, encourages workforce stability and long-term savings—a vital step in reshaping employment culture.

Challenges and Questions

However, no scheme of this magnitude is without concerns:

- Sustainability: Can the government sustain a ₹1 lakh crore outlay if uptake exceeds projections?
- Targeting and Leakage: Ensuring that incentives do not go to “ghost employees” or short-term contractual hires remains a critical monitoring challenge.
- Skill Alignment: Jobs must be productive, not just plentiful. Without parallel investment in skilling and training, the scheme risks incentivizing low-quality employment.
- Employer Behavior: Employers may game the system by cycling employees to continuously claim incentives, unless robust safeguards are in place.
- Regional Balance: Employment generation may skew toward industrial clusters, potentially leaving hinterlands underserved.

The Road Ahead

PMVBRY reframes the narrative of freedom itself: ‘freedom not just from colonial rule, but from unemployment, insecurity, and informality’. If executed well, PMVBRY could become more than a policy instrument. It could become a new social contract between state and citizen: the state promises opportunity, and the citizen contributes productivity. The message is clear: India's growth story will not just be measured in GDP figures or unicorn valuations, but in jobs created, wages paid, and futures secured. That is how Swatantra Bharat can finally transform into Samriddha Bharat.

historic spaceflight. The data and experience gained from Axiom-4 will strengthen India's human spaceflight program and inspire future generations of scientists, engineers, and explorers.

Thus, the safe return of Shukla and his crewmates not only concluded a remarkable journey in space but also brought India one step closer to realizing its aspirations as a leading spacefaring nation, reaffirming the power of global cooperation in exploration beyond Earth.

Axiom-4 Mission Crew

The Axiom-4 mission brought together a diverse and accomplished international crew, each of whom has unique expertise in science, engineering, aviation and space research. The mission commander, Dr Peggy Whitson from the United States, is a biochemist by training with a PhD in biochemistry. She has spent 675 days in space over four missions. For her work, she has been awarded the NASA Leadership Medal, Time 100 (2018) and Women in Aviation Lifetime Achievement Award (2017).

The mission pilot, Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla, is an Indian Air Force pilot and ISRO astronaut. He has undergone rigorous training at the Yuri Gagarin Cosmonaut Training Center in Star City, Moscow, Russia.

Slawoz Uznański Wisniewski from Poland is a mission specialist with cutting-edge technical expertise. He holds a dual M.Sc. degree from Lodz University of Technology and Université de Nantes. In 2011, he also received a PhD from Aix-Marseille University. From 2018 to 2020, he also served as the engineer-in-charge of the Large Hadron Collider, one of the most interesting and important scientific experiments in the world.

The fourth member is Tibor Kapu, a mechanical engineer from Hungary, who is a mission specialist. Kapu has extensive training in space engineering, flight simulation, physical endurance, and scientific research methods. These four astronauts symbolize the growing reach of international cooperation and commercial space missions.

India's Contribution to the Mission

Today India has evolved from a technology follower to an equal and respected global partner in space exploration. Group Captain Shukla carried indigenous experiment kits with him in the Axiom-4 mission. These kits were developed by leading Indian institutions such as Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), Indian Institute of Science (IISc) and Department of Biotechnology (DBT). These kits were used to conduct advanced experiments on the International Space Station.

The aim of the biotechnology experiments was to study the effects of microgravity and cosmic radiation on the growth of edible microalgae. Microalgae are a sustainable food source rich in nutrients, proteins, lipids and bioactive compounds, which are ideal for long duration space missions. These studies have contributed significantly to future deep space missions and long term sustainability of human presence in space, the experiences of these experiments will also prove useful in India's much awaited Gaganyaan mission.

Indian astronaut, Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla also studied the physical, cognitive and functional responses in space as well as the cognitive effects of continuous electronic display in microgravity. Some important research work was also done to focus on skeletal muscle dysfunction and therapeutic solutions.

Gaganyaan Shubhanshu Shukla also conducted experiments on the revival, survival and reproduction of ex-tremophiles like tardigrades. These microbes(they are animals) are known for their resilience in extreme conditions and research work on them will be helpful in advancing scientific understanding of the sustainability of life beyond Earth. Extremophiles are organisms that are well adapted to the conditions found in extreme environments such as very hot, cold, acidic or salty areas. Tardigrades, also known as water bears or moss piglets, are a microbe that can survive even in extreme conditions. It does not have a backbone. Tardigrades are known for their hardiness and ability to survive.

It is a matter of national pride that Indian astronauts are an active participant in the Axiom-4 mission and have a role in the international mission.

In fact, more than sixty scientific experiments have been carried out during this mission. Seven experiments were suggested by Indian scientists. India also conducted astro-biology experiments for the first time, in which ISRO and NASA participated.

The Axiom-4 mission is not only a scientific achievement, but also a testimony to India's growing reputation as a global technology superpower. It also symbolizes the country's ability to lead space innovation, promote sustainability and make meaningful contributions to global missions.

Achievements of Shubhanshu Shukla

- One of India's first military astronauts: Shubhanshu Shukla is one of the select pilots of the Indian Air Force who got the opportunity of space training and space travel.
- Visit to the International Space Station: Under Axiom-4, he played a role in establishing Indian scientific research in space.
- Cooperation in space science missions of the International Space Station: He carried out microgravity experiments selected by the International Space Station, which provided new scientific information to Indian researchers.
- Increased India's credibility at the global level: His contribution strengthened India's presence in international space missions.

How Will Shubhanshu Shukla's Axiom-4 Experience Benefit ISRO?

With Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla's flight, India is preparing for its own spacecraft mission in the coming days. Axiom-4 mission is closely linked to our own space plans and its results will prove helpful for Gaganyaan mission and other missions to come after it. Before Gaganyaan, Axiom-4 mission has gone into space, which will give India a lot to learn from.

Human space flight missions are quite complex, especially when you are doing it for the first time. Such safety protocols have to be integrated. This is the challenge that ISRO is facing with the Gaganyaan mission. And every part of additional input that reduces the risk and increases the safety of the mission will be very important. Therefore, Shukla's experiences with the Axiom-4 mission will be important for ISRO. He will bring the experience of days spent in real space which can be used in Gaganyaan. Shubhanshu Shukla learned a lot during the Axiom-4 mission, which will be beneficial for India's future space missions.

Although a lot of spacecraft are automated, this one requires human intervention. It is not a point-to-point journey. The spacecraft has to follow a complex orbit to reach the International Space Station. The International Space Station is a moving target in space. The pilot needs to make many decisions and initiate many processes during the flight to the destination. Therefore, Shubhanshu Shukla's experience will be important for other Indian astronauts who will go on Gaganyaan missions.
